THE SCOOP

For over a quarter of a century, Oracle has been producing software that has shaped the technology of businesses throughout the world. Oracle has the distinction of being the world’s largest supplier of information management software and is the second-largest independent software company after Microsoft. Oracle has reported steady growth despite the economic downturn. In summer 2008, it created a global business unit to develop software applications for the health care industry.

ON THE JOB

Interns work on real projects, mainly in product development. Oracle prides itself on providing a livable work style for its employees. A casual dress code and extensive “campus” replete with cafes, state-of-the-art exercise facilities and club room are some of the perks, as well as social activities arranged for interns.
