The Firm Says

Davis & Harman LLP is committed to developing and fostering a diverse workplace. Our recruiting policies are designed to identify and successfully recruit diverse law students and attorneys. In addition, our commitment to diversity is evident in our roster of current and former attorneys. They have come to the Firm from a wide variety of racial, ethnic, religious, and educational backgrounds. We are a small firm and nearly one-third of our attorneys are female-including three partners and two associates. One of the Firm's founding partners was a female. In addition, our professional staff consists of all women including our Legislative Coordinator, Firm Administrator, and IT Administrator.

The Firm has a diversity committee composed of three partners (two males and one female) and one member of the committee is the Firm's managing partner. The Firm has a designated diversity page on our website. Also, the Firm's Equal Employment Opportunity Policy covers all aspects of employment and specifically prohibits discrimination based on a person's race, color, sex, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, or religion.

Currently, the Firm has two "home grown" female partners. Both began working at the Firm as junior associates and were promoted to partners. Also, the Firm has had three partners who openly identified as gay. In 2016, the Firm was recognized by a client, which is a major financial institution, as a top performing law firm for championing diversity and inclusion. In addition, our female firm administrator has been with the firm for 20 years.

The Firm has a pro bono policy in place that recognizes the Firm's commitment to providing pro bono services as part of our professional responsibility to provide access to the legal system for all, especially the poor and marginalized in our community. We encourage all attorneys in our firm to perform pro bono service, whether engaging individual pro bono clients directly or through programs sponsored by the D.C. Bar Pro Bono Center or other non-profit organizations. To support the Firm's attorneys providing pro bono services, each attorney performing pro bono services approved by the Pro Bono Committee will receive credit, up to 50 hours per year, against his or her expected annual billable hours. Pro bono hours will be treated the same as fee generating work when assessing an attorney's annual performance and compensation. Attorneys may and are encouraged to perform pro bono services in excess of the 50 hours credited.

In addition, the Firm participated for a number of years in the Capital Area REACH program which provides summer employment to individuals from underrepresented groups. The REACH program is committed to helping young minorities in the community become successful in school, work and the community.

As discussed above, our recruiting policies are designed to identify and successfully recruit diverse law students and attorneys. When the Firm recruits, it participates in the Georgetown Law Diversity Resume Collection and we encourage schools to match us with diverse candidates through resume collections or other programs offered by the schools.

Each year the Firm sponsors events and/or makes financial contributions to various organizations and charities that support the underserved, women, and other diverse populations. Some of these organizations include:

Hispanic Executive

Hispanic Leadership Fund

Human Rights Campaign

New Endeavors by Women

Open City Advocates

Streetwise Partners

Women's Institute for A Secure Retirement (WISER)

In addition, as described above, attorneys in the Firm actively perform pro bono work, including work for the D.C. Bar's Small Business Brief Advice Legal Clinic. The clinic provides legal information and advice to small business owners who operate in economically disadvantaged areas.
